

SENATOR MARTIN ON HOOVER PLAN

One of the most ringing indorsements of the recent foreign policy proposals of former President Hoover is that made by Pennsylvania's U. S. Senator Edward Martin.

This indorsement has especial interest, not only because of the very broad background of Senator Martin in public affairs—he has been Governor of Pennsylvania, as well as Republican State Chairman, Auditor General and State Treasurer—but especially because General Martin has been a soldier all his life, and a particularly distinguished one.

This point has much significance, because the first New Deal counter-offensive against the ex-president's criticisms was to the effect that he recommended a shabby, craven policy of retreat and surrender—a singularly brazen piece of misrepresentation which of course could deceive no one who had read the Hoover speech.

Senator Martin's indorsement is in itself a refutation of this fraudulent charge made by the Washington propagandists. The General has led far too many victorious movements ever to be likely to approve one which was not courageous and resolute. Moreover, since in some degree the Hoover suggestions deal with military questions, it is interesting to have the favorable reaction of a man who knows these military matters from the special vantage point of having risen through the ranks to extremely high army rank.

The remarks of Senator Martin are worth printing in full:

"I am in complete accord with ex-President Hoover.

"I thoroughly agree with him that the preservation of America as a land of freedom is our paramount objective.

"We must concentrate our strength here at home.

"We invite defeat if we spread our defensive forces too thin all over the world. Such a course is against all sound military principle.

"No further aid should be extended to those countries that refuse to recognize their obligations in defense of their own freedom.

"Above all we must make the United States so strong that we will be able to decide where we will make a stand against Communist aggression.

"Up to now Joe Stalin has been the quarterback in every contest. If we put all of America's strength in the battle we can call the plays and we will win.

"I feel that ex-President Hoover has clearly

TWP COMMISSIONERS TO ORGANIZE MONDAY

Oaths of Office To Be Administered at Meeting in Newportville

NOW A 1ST CLASS DIST

With the advent of 1951, Bristol Township, second class, will become Bristol Township, first class. It has been so decided by the voters of the district at the general election held last November.

Monday evening the five men appointed by the Bucks County Court will take the oath of office. The oaths will be administered by Max M. Lawrence, Bristol Township justice of the peace. The ceremony will take place in the Newportville fire station at 7.30 o'clock. It is said that the law calls for the meeting to be held in the oldest voting place in the district.

The commissioners are: George Sottung, Walter W. Bowker, Frank H. Hibbs, Eugene Stutz, and James E. Harris.

After taking the oath the commissioners will organize the board, but it is not planned to hold a business session until such time as the supervisors of Bristol Township, second class district, complete the financial report of the district which has been under their supervision, and the report has been audited. A budget will then have to be prepared by the new commissioners.

At the meeting Monday evening, the commissioners will select a president, vice-president, and secretary. A chief of police will also be named.

Robert Cameron, named as treasurer by the Court, will also take the oath of office.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

The Federal Government further extended its hold yesterday on the nation's economy by imposing rigid control over the distribution and use of cobalt. The metal is essential in the production of jet engines, and restrictions on its use is expected to affect manufacturers of television and radio sets. The Government also ordered the reactivation of three magnesium plants held in reserve since the end of World War II.

The White House agreement of Dec. 31 for the settlement of the dispute between the railroads and the operating unions was rejected by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

John Foster Dulles, in an address that generally supported the Truman Administration's foreign policy, condemned the "area defense" proposal of Herbert Hoover. Mr. Dulles asked the Western nations to develop to the fullest their power to counter-attack in retaliation for any aggression. The United States repudiated representative to the United Nations. Ernest A. Gross, said this country wanted to increase the West's military strength to the point where it would make a Soviet attack unprofitable.

Assistant Secretary of State Rusk, in a Voice of America broadcast, charged that the Chinese Communists had planned on intervening in Korea long before the start of hostilities last June. He made it clear that Washington had almost no hope that the three-man commission named by the United Nations would achieve a truce in Korea. The Indian member on that body, Sir Benegal N. Rau, indicated, however, that he had not given up hope for a peaceful settlement of the Korean issue.

Yugoslav Foreign Minister Karadjevic warned that the world was heading toward another general war, brought nearer because of Chinese intervention in Korea.

Following overwhelming approval of the French Government's rearmament bill by the Assembly, Premier Plevin asked the Assembly for four votes of confidence. The vote in support of the bill was 416 to 180, the opposition consisting for the most part of the Communist representatives.

France and the other Western European nations received the bulk of arms shipments to nations participating in the Mutual Defense Assistance Program, the Department of Defense reported. In all 725,000 tons of equipment have been received by these countries since

POLICE ASS'N GIVES $500 TOWARD RADIO

Commissioners Think Communities Should Share In The Cost

MAY COST $20,000

NEWTOWN, Dec. 30—The Bucks County Police Association has made a donation of $500 towards an estimated cost of $20,000 for the installation and operation of a county-wide police radio system.

Bucks County Commissioners Simon K. Moyer and Joseph W. Halliwell have declined to state at this time whether or not they will consider placing $20,000 additional or more in the budget for police radio system.

The Commissioners have expressed the opinion that each borough and township should share in the cost of the police-radio hook-up, and before taking final action would like to know what the various municipalities are willing to do in the way of sharing the expense.

At a meeting of the Bucks County Police Association here, it was the opinion of the members that the municipalities should share the expense.

"I think each borough and township should help bear the cost of a police-radio hook-up since each taxpayer will be benefitted," said County Commissioner Moyer, who explained that to install an elevator at the County Home cost $36,000 and that a recent Grand Jury urged the construction of a sun porch for the same institution which will cost thousands.

"We would like to have a few more concrete details, just how many boroughs, or police departments in the county, are willing to sign up to help pay for the police radio system before we, as County Commissioners, take any financial action," said Chief County Commissioner Moyer who assured Exhibit Will Be Featured In Lobby of The Bristol Trust Co.

AN UNIQUE DISPLAY

An exhibit, "Bell Telephone Dollars at Work in Pennsylvania" will be featured in the lobby of the Bristol Trust Company from January 2 to January 12, it was announced today.

William J. Wohlhagen, local telephone manager, points out that this money is paid to residents of the state in three ways: $100,000,000 in payrolls; supplies and services, and $22,000,000 in dividends to nearly 80,000 stockholders.

"Dollars like these have helped to build Pennsylvania's prosperity and are today a vital part of this great State's solid economic foundation," he said.

(By I.N.S.)

Most of the nation will see 1950 close under cloudy skies today and tomorrow but snow and icy winds may ride in with the new year in the winter-weary midwest.

Weather Bureau observers said only the southwest, a few of the plain states, and Southern California—Rose Bowl country—will have much sunshine during the holiday weekend.

There will be no excessive cold anywhere in the U. S., the Weather Bureau said, but snow and rain are expected to hit the Northern Great Lakes region and the upper Ohio Valley by Sunday.

Snow is expected to fall by tonight in western New York and Pennsylvania, but the eastern seaboard will have mild weather and cloudy skies for most of the holiday span.

A cold drizzle is forecast for southeastern states, still recovering from an unseasonal cold wave earlier this week.

Northern California will have cloudy skies and the Pacific northwest will have rain.

Eastern Pennsylvania and New York—snow or rain turning to snow flurries today. Total precipitation will be two to four tenths inch. Colder tonight and tomorrow, rising trend Tuesday, colder Wednesday. Temperatures will average two to four degrees below normal.

WISE LEADERSHIP IS NOW REQUIRED

Latin American Opinion Must Be Kept Marshalled Solidly for U. S.

HAS RAW MATERIALS

This is the last of a series of articles disclosing the extent of Communist activities in Latin America aimed at weakening the security of the Western Hemisphere and specifically the United States.

By Malcolm Johnson

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—(INS)—The State Department realizes that positive, wise leadership is required to combat the rising menace of Communism in Latin America.

It is necessary, the Department's spokesmen emphasize, to keep Latin American opinion marshalled solidly on the side of the free world.

It is important to keep the Latin American people convinced that their welfare is linked to the welfare of the United States.

The purpose of the Communists, as agents of the Kremlin, is plain. It is to neutralize Latin America in the event of war between the U. S. and the Soviet Union and deprive us of such vitally needed supplies as wool, zinc, oil, tin, copper, rubber and foodstuffs.

In a recent speech, Assistant Secretary of State Edward G. Miller, Jr., in charge of Inter-American Affairs, warned that there has been too much friction and misunderstanding in the past in U. S. relations with Latin America.

"For some of this," he said, "we can justly blame those among ourselves who fail to understand the hopes and aspirations of the Latin

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1950

GLANCE INTO TOMORROW

Working from the premise that what's done is done we're much more inclined to look ahead than astern this New Year's eve of 1950. We'll preface our attempt at crystal gazing by saying that we sat down a few minutes yesterday afternoon and tried to pinpoint the 10 top news stories of 1951. Unfortunately, we cannot enumerate them. They have been consigned to a jerry-built time capsule which will be opened with appropriate ceremony one year later.

But, as might be expected, all were extensions of our own wishful thinking. They are the things we would dearly love to see come to pass. We hoped to find that peace and unity had returned to the world, that every nation had renounced war as an instrument of national policy, that the budget had been balanced and taxes reduced, that the fight against cancer, polio and heart disease had been won. Nor did we forget the common cold. That was licked, too.

Call us impractical if you will. But we think that like many another human being we are just plain dissatisfied with things as they are. We figure it takes as little—or less—effort to sketch our version of the year 1951 in bright colors as it does to sneer it with dark predictions.

Make no mistake. We're not chiding anyone who feels he can get encouragement and strength by peering back over our accomplishments of the past 50 years. That's part of the scheme of bringing things into proper perspective. We just feel that a look ahead will lend hope to any who despair, and help provide a blueprint for action for those who are determined to make things better.

RESOLUTIONS

Comes now the time of year that traditionally was devoted to making New Year's resolutions in an earlier day. This was a merry custom that was good for many a quip or laugh and provided a prime conversational subject for many weeks.

It is a pity, in a way, that the custom of making New Year's resolutions has gradually died out. Little is heard of this once popular pastime these days. In fact, the current generations, both young and old, regard such proclivities as strictly on the corny side.

But 'twas not always thus. In grandpa's day making resolutions—or "turning over a new leaf," as it was sometimes dubbed—was an activity that was entered into wholeheartedly and in complete seriousness. What did it matter that the old reprobate always backslid the next day, the next week or the next month, and went back to smoking cheroots or to engage in some similar vice?

Yep, the making of resolutions was quite a pastime in its own right 40 or 50 years ago. It added hilarity to an otherwise somber scene, and nothing has appeared to take its place. Ah, well—such is progress.

Things may change, but it is pointed out that a year ago it was winter, too.

CHURCHES FEATURE OUTSTANDING EVENTS AT SERVICES FOR SUNDAY AND FOLLOWING WEEK

BRISTOL METHODIST TO CONDUCT PRAYER FOR PEACE TOMORROW

Bristol Methodist Church, Rev. Harold C. Koch, S.T.M., pastor: The congregation of the Bristol Methodist Church will join with the denominations nearly nine million members in a National Mid-Century Prayer for Peace at the morning worship at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning. In a letter to pastors of 42,000 Methodist churches, the board urged every congregation to unite in "a chain of prayer on Mid-Century Sunday, beseeching God's guidance in converting a world crisis to a just and lasting peace." Declaring that "mankind's hope for freedom is in desperate jeopardy," the plea for prayer coincided with a similar request by the president of the new National Council of Churches, Episcopal Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill, of New York. He urged all Protestants to offer prayers on December 31 for "a peace which is the fruit of righteousness."

expressed the thinking of the American people, and we should be thankful that we have the guidance of such an outstanding world figure."

In this connection, it is interesting also to check back with the platform submitted by the Pennsylvania Republicans in connection with the campaign last fall, and see whether this supports or clashes with the Hoover comments.

Inspection of the platform, which of course was written months before the Hoover speech was made, shows that it foreshadowed the same viewpoint on foreign affairs which the ex-President submitted last December 20.

Note the following quotations, which state precisely the same fundamental weakness in our world position that former President Hoover emphasized:

"It is impossible to over-estimate the danger to our National security. For the first time in the history of America we face a threat to our very existence as a nation. As the leader of the free people of today's world, we have extended our commitments on a world wide basis without likewise developing our strength to enable us to make those commitments effective. Unless we immediately arouse ourselves, both to our dangers, and to our present inability to meet those dangers, our failure may well be fatal, not alone to our freedom but to free people everywhere."

This of course is the very same picture of our world plight which led Mr. Hoover to make his two fundamental recommendations—first, that we withdraw our soldiers and arms from all commitments in localities where the residents themselves lack the will to help defend themselves; and second, that in our own country "we arm to the teeth," so as to make our own hemisphere impregnable against any attack, by Communist Russia or by anyone else.

American countries. "But part of the blame," Miller added, "must be laid at the door of those in Latin America who, with or without malice aforethought, misinterpret and distort the motives, policies and objectives of the United States.

"While much of this misinterpretation and distortion stems from our enemies, whose purpose is to divide and confuse inter-American opinion, a disappointingly large share of it comes from people who are anything but sympathetic to Communism, but who either are obsessed with outmoded concepts of economic policy or who enjoy using this country as a scapegoat for their economic ills."

The "good neighbor" policy inaugurated in the early 30's is cited as having done much to cement friendly relations with Latin America.

Just how important this is to the United States was proved during World War II. Ivan White, economic adviser to Assistant Secretary Miller, says that Latin America was able to supply the U. S. war economy with $1.5 billions of essential goods.

With regard to future possibilities, White says: "With two-thirds of the world's population and three-fourths of its productive capacity in non-Communist areas, the Soviet Union is confronted with a formidable barrier to the attainment of its ultimate goals.

"The Kremlin, therefore, has another clear objective, namely, to obtain a progressive shift in the balance of productive power in the world."

Other observers emphasize that this is one of the primary reasons why the Communists now are concentrating feverishly on Latin America.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson has pointed out that to counteract this activity our own approach to the problem must be a "dynamic one." As a step toward action, Acheson has called for a meeting of the Foreign Ministers of 21 American republics.

White says: "Economic conditions for freedom through the creation of new workshops, new crops, new wealth must be developed in places where they have not been before.

"It means that for the millions of people living in a state of poverty in under-developed regions, every reasonable effort must be made for the economic development and the increase in the interchange of goods necessary if they are to believe that the free world offers a workable system for the improvement of their living standards and the achievement of their aspirations."

United States aid in problems of public health, sanitation and education in impoverished Latin American countries is one of the concrete, friendly acts which are helping to improve relations.

By such acts the American people are trying to prove their lasting friendship for Latin America and their interest in the welfare of its people.

This form of assistance might be greatly expanded under existing legislation.

The United States' best weapon against Communist agitation in Latin America again is seen as the weapon of truth—truth buttressed by positive aid and acts of friendship.

Highway Toll For Year is Now 30

this year to a total of 30 persons killed.

With the approach of the New Year holiday season, State Police sub-stations at Doylestown, Langhorne and Quakertown, have issued warnings about driving safely. Automobile clubs have done the same.

Last year, a total of 39 persons were killed on Bucks county highways, and up until Thursday morning the death toll for this year stood at 28.

On a slippery highway, the Deep Run Road, near Dublin Borough, Walter H. Robinson, 34, of Bedminster, and Clyde L. Meyers, 17, of Dublin, were instantly killed in a head-on crash to bring the death toll to 30 in the county this year. Robinson's wife, Lydia, 33, is in the Abington Memorial Hospital, with two broken legs. Robinson was one driver and the other was Richard Leatherman, 23, of Dublin, who is in the hospital in Doylestown with head injuries. Meyers was riding with Leatherman on their way to work on the farm of Leatherman's parents.

Unless there is a lot more careful driving and a lot more reckless drivers remain at home over the New Year holiday season, the death toll in Bucks county, as elsewhere, is bound to be boosted for the balance of 1950, police predict.

Police Ass'n Gives $500 Toward Radio

ed the policemen that the Court and the District Attorney's office are in favor of a police-radio county-wide and inter-county set-up.

Chief William Hammerschmidt, Sellersville; President Clarence K. Wenhold, Quakertown; Burgess George A. Scholes, Quakertown; Detective William L. Stackhouse, Doylestown; Chief of Warminster Township Police Paul Brennan and County Commissioners Moyer and Halliwell recently went to Norristown, where they saw the Montgomery County Police radio in operation and ascertained details.

Chief William Hammerschmidt vehemently opposed having the Bucks county firemen take part in the radio hook-up unless "each company that wants to buy a receiver is wealthy enough to do it."

Detective Stackhouse, who explained that Doylestown would be the logical and suitable place for the headquarters and radio tower, said: "We must realize that one-half of the county's population is located south of Newtown. For some time the firemen south of Newtown have been realizing that they will have to form one group in order to better control fire prevention and organize a better and more cooperative system of alarms and fighting fires."

County Commissioner Moyer revealed that at the present time the County Commissioners are faced with appropriating money for Civil Defense set-up, a planning board and constant improvements to various county institutions.

Officer Frank Shelly, of the Quakertown Police Department, was elected secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John Brehm, Bristol. Chief Newton Rapp, of Quakertown, reported $44 made on the clam bake.

Burgess Lloyd A. Hönigey, of Sellersville, was elected an active member.

Constable C. Clifford Beck, Doylestown, and Justice of the Peace Fred L. Bickel, Warminster, president of the Bucks County Magistrates' Association, explained the advantages of the constables joining the magistrates' association.

Two popular Bucks County Police School instructors, FBI Agents William H. Naylor and Donald M. DeHart, of the Philadelphia office of the FBI, were guests. Agent DeHart invited the Bucks policemen to visit and inspect the new firing range of the Philadelphia Police Department, near Holmesburg, since the FBI is conducting a firing school there now.

A discussion concerning the publishing of a "police book" to raise money towards the radio hook-up was held.

President Wenhold announced that the next meeting will be held in the upper end of the county.

Welcoming of New Year Not Likely To Be Too Noisy

The welcoming of 1951 promises to be a quiet one here. No formal celebration has been planned. Of course it is expected there will be the usual blowing of whistles, ringing of bells and tooting of horns tomorrow at midnight.

Churches have planned watch-night services.

A number of private parties have been planned and most of these will take place tomorrow evening. Some, however, are arranging a double celebration by holding affairs this evening and also tomorrow night.
